GFWC Arkansas Tornado Damage

The tornado that hit Arkansas on Friday, March 31st also damaged the North Little Rock Woman's Club (NLRWC), as well as a member's home.

The NLRWC is located in North Little Rock's Burns Park, which, according to North Little Rock Mayor Terry Hartwick, lost 10,000 trees as well as amusement and sporting areas.

Trees blocked the parking area and several fell on the roof of the NLRWC clubhouse. One tree went through the roof. Besides the roof and electrical damage, water damaged the ceilings, carpet, and floors in several rooms. Some furniture will have to be discarded. Because of this damage, the NLRWC Clubhouse will be closed for several months. We lost our fundraiser and rental income, but are determined to recover. The city of North Little Rock is doing everything they can to help us.

Thank you for your thoughts and prayers. They mean so much to us.

Messages of support may be sent to:

Nebraska State President's Project Volunteering is Love Beyond Measure

by: Karen Crandall, GFWC Nebraska State President

How can you measure the amazing volunteer efforts of GFWC Clubwomen? There is no easy way nor a tape measure long enough. GFWC Nebraska is a great example of the state's theme, "Volunteering is Love Beyond Measure." Club members go the extra mile to support GFWC Programs and the State President's Special Projects.

One of the Nebraska State President's Projects for this administration is the Dr. Susan La Flesche Picotte Memorial Hospital. Dr. Susan was an active member in her local GFWC Club where she also served several years as GFWC Nebraska State Health Chairman.

Dr. Susan was born in a tipi on the Omaha Indian Reservation in Walthill, Nebraska, on June 17, 1865. At this time, medical training was rare for women and unheard of for Native American women. However, on March 14, 1889, at the age of 24, Dr. Susan graduated as valedictorian of her medical class from the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania. In her lifetime, she treated over 1,240 patients and traveled over 1,350 square miles on horseback. Dr. Susan's goal from the beginning was to provide medical attention to those living on or near the reservation, no matter the person's race. For many years Dr. Susan had a dream of opening a hospital on the reservation. The hospital opened bearing her name in 1913.

The hospital is currently being restored and close to completion. The need for care in this underserved community is no less important today than it was when Dr. Susan made it her mission to build a hospital. Even though it has been more than 125 years since Dr. Susan served on the GFWC Board of Directors, Nebraska club members are very proud and excited to support and help rebuild the Dr. Susan La Flesche Picotte Memorial Hospital.

Another State President's Project is "Hope for Justice - Human Trafficking." GFWC Nebraska recognizes the importance of this growing problem in their state. The goal of this project is to raise awareness and to support child and youth victims of sex and labor trafficking in Nebraska. Most victims in Nebraska are teens and women aged 14-30. In 2022, the state recorded 48 female and 9 male victims. This year it is predicted that at least 40 female high schoolers will fall victim to human trafficking in Nebraska. The State Chairman of this project is doing a great job of keeping club members informed on recognizing the signs of human trafficking and what to do to help.

GFWC Nebraska will continue to make a difference!

Annual Giving: It is Your Time to Sparkle

by: Mary Ann Pierce,
Annual Giving Program
Committee Member

We are in the fourth quarter of the 2022-
23 Annual Giving Program!

Some of your donations have been earmarked for the GFWC Headquarters Marquee & Ironworks Project, which is greatly appreciated. But we still need additional funds to make the total repair a reality. A Federation Day donation on April 24th would be a perfect way to celebrate and keep this part of our Headquarters beautiful and safe.

During this new quarter, if you are one of the first 100 donors to give at least $100, you will receive a GFWC cord organizer. When donations are totaled this year, we hope Headquarters will sparkle with all three marquees being refurbished to their original beauty!

Are you traveling to the GFWC Annual Convention in June? Look for the Annual Giving Program table, where we will share a bit of sparkle with every attendee who donates at least $20. (Checks, cash, credit/debit cards, and Zelle payments are always accepted.) In addition, there will be a special donor reception and Convention Program listing for those who have contributed at least $500 before May 25, 2023. Let's light up the room with sparkle while we "Honor the Legacy and Inspire and Future" of GFWC!

GFWC Juniors' Special Program: Advocates for Children

by: Katie Robey, JSP Chairman

April is Child Abuse Awareness Month, and GFWC clubwomen have two sources of information for projects and advocacy. Child Abuse Prevention is one of the eight focuses of GFWC's Signature Program: Domestic and Sexual Awareness and Prevention. GFWC Juniors' Special Program: Advocates for Children works in tandem and encourages all clubwomen to make a difference in the life of a child by being an advocate. The GFWC Club Manual pages for both special programs list advocacy efforts and projects for GFWC clubwomen.

You can be an Advocate for Children by responding to the Legislative Action Center's Alerts for online safety bills. The Eliminating Abusive and Rampant Neglect of Interactive Technologies Act (EARN IT Act) would create a National Commission on Online Child Sexual Exploitation Prevention who would be charged with developing a best practices document for online service providers to help them prevent child exploitation and aid in investigating child exploitation crimes. Although the bill had wide bipartisan support, its passage has failed. But there is hope it will be reintroduced in 2023.

The Kids Online Safety Act has been discussed recently at the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings and it is hoped that this bill will be approved in 2023. Another bipartisan legislation, The Internet Platform Accountability, and Consumer Transparency (Internet PACT) Act, has been reintroduced in the US Senate. This bill requires social media companies to establish clear content moderation policies and holds them accountable for content that violates their own policies or is illegal.

There is bipartisan support in Congress for legislation dealing with social media's impact on child sexual abuse material and cyberbullying. As bills move forward, remember when you sparkle, you light the path for others. Light a path to end child abuse...be an Advocate for Children.

Body Language as a Communications Tool

by: Bette Kuboushek, CPR Committee Member

When listening to a speaker or a presenter at a meeting or conference, have you ever noticed his or her body language? Was there eye contact and the use of hand gestures? Or perhaps they read from a script on the podium without acknowledging the audience? These are the opposite ways people communicate with body language. One is better than the other!

Body language is using physical behavior, expressions, and mannerisms to communicate non-verbally.¹ Body language can either help or hurt in getting our message across. People express themselves in different ways, including verbal (spoken words), vocal (tone, volume), and nonverbal (see below).

Facial expressions, body movement, posture, gestures, and eye contact are examples of nonverbal communication. Facial features convey basic emotions, including surprise, happiness, anger, fear, sadness, and disgust. The speaker's posture should be relaxed, but their back should be straight. Good speakers do not cross their arms but let them dangle at their sides or press them together in their lap. "Gestures include actions such as waving, pointing, and even using hands when speaking."² Experts believe that people who are great speakers are more likely to use hand gestures during conversations or presentations. Eye contact is possibly the most important communication tool we have. Looking someone directly in the eye shows respect, eagerness, willingness to listen, and concern.

Body language is essential in communicating with others as it helps break barriers and form a better connection.²

Volunteers in Action: Millville Woman's Club (NJ)

While every day is a good day to pick up trash, on March 18th members of the Millville Woman's Club (MWC) participated in the annual Cumberland County Trash Hunt. It was chilly, but the sun was bright. Members dressed in warm jackets and gloves and proceeded to fill their bags with trash collected around their clubhouse neighborhood. MWC and many other groups participate in this event each year in an effort to keep our county beautiful and our neighborhoods clean and safe.

Is your club helping the community? Send us approximately 100 words about your project for the chance to be featured in Volunteers in Action. Please submit your story, 1-3 photos, and your club's name and state to PR@gfwc.org.
