Dear Senators and Representatives:

The National Task Force to End Sexual and Domestic Violence (NTF) represents national, tribal, state, and local organizations working to end domestic violence and sexual assault. The 437 undersigned organizations join with the NTF to urge you to significantly increase funding for federal programs that address domestic violence, sexual assault, dating violence, and stalking. Domestic and sexual violence are life-threatening, pervasive crimes that affect millions of people every day. We implore you to build upon our nation's progress in addressing these crimes by providing incredibly-needed investments in the FY 2023 funding bills.

Our nation has made such phenomenal progress in understanding and addressing domestic violence and sexual assault. Congress is committed to make an ongoing, annual investment. Survivors rely on federally-funded direct services such as shelter, rape crisis services, culturally specific services, legal assistance, counseling, and more. However, the overwhelming demand for services leaves many of these effective and essential programs short of the necessary funding to meet the need.

Return on Investment

A study shows that the lifetime economic cost of intimate partner violence to the U.S. population is $3.6 trillion<sup>1</sup>. In its first six years alone, The Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) has saved an estimated $12.6 billion in net-averted costs<sup>2</sup>. Studies have shown that an increase in the availability of legal services is associated with a decrease in intimate partner homicide<sup>3</sup>. VAWA funds, particularly the ones supporting law enforcement, have been linked to a reduction in rape and aggravated assault<sup>4</sup>. Referring a victim to an advocate has been linked to an increased willingness to file a police report, keeping our communities safer<sup>5</sup>. A 2017 study highlighted the effectiveness of bystander intervention funded through VAWA's Rape Prevention and Education Program in reducing sexual assault perpetration<sup>6</sup>. Domestic violence shelters, funded in significant part by the Family Violence Prevention Services Act (FVPSA), have proven to be successful at addressing victims' urgent and long-term needs while helping victims protect themselves and their children<sup>7</sup>. Victims of Crime Act (VOCA) funding has allowed communities to foster innovation, reduce waitlists, increase vital services, hire staff to counsel more survivors, and expand rural services.

Desperate need remains

Despite this progress, domestic violence shelters, rape crisis centers, culturally specific organizations, and other domestic violence and sexual assault service providers continue to face budget shortfalls, exacerbated by economic strain in communities and increased rates of domestic violence and sexual assault in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic. The national spotlight on these crimes is bringing more survivors out of the shadows and increasing requests for services. We applaud these survivors and are trying to address the increased demand for services. Unfortunately, many programs are forced to turn away victims who are desperate and have nowhere to go.

Almost one in five women in the United States has been the victim of rape or attempted rape, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). A 2021 survey by the National Alliance to End Sexual Violence shows that the nation's 1,500 sexual assault programs often lack sufficient resources to meet victims' most basic needs.

Almost 1/3 of programs report a waiting list for services with 2/3 of those programs reporting a waiting list for counseling, some of which are several months long; 45% of programs lack a therapist on staff<sup>8</sup>.

According to the National Network to End Domestic Violence's 2021 Domestic Violence Counts Report, 70,032 victims of domestic violence received services in one day. However, on the same day, 9,444 requests for services went unmet due to a lack of funding and resources. Of those unmet requests, 64% were for safe housing<sup>9</sup>.

Native women face some of the highest levels of violence of any group. Four in five American Indian and Alaska Native women have experienced violence in their lifetime and overall, which comes to more than 1.5 million American Indian and Alaska Native women. Over 90% of these victims have experienced that violence at the hands of a non-Indian intimate partner.

FY 2023 Funding needed to support survivors

Maintained and steadily increasing funding for VAWA grants, FVPSA, the Rape Prevention and Education program, and the Domestic Violence/Sexual Assault set-aside in homelessness funds, along with sustained funding released from VOCA, are beginning to address a portion of the gap in direct services and are helping communities invest in prevention. We are extremely grateful for these critical funds that will save and transform lives.

The federal government funds vital programs at the U.S. Departments of Justice (DOJ) and Health and Human Services (HHS) that reach into every community across the nation to provide safety, access to services, and justice for victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking. The formula grant programs and national services include:

- The Sexual Assault Services Program (VAWA, DOJ), which is the federal government's only funding source dedicated to sexual assault services and rape crisis centers in every state;
- Family Violence Prevention Services Act (FVPSA, HHS), which is the federal government's only dedicated funding stream for domestic violence shelters and outreach programs;
- Victims of Crime Act (VOCA, DOJ), which is a non-taxpayer fund that supports 7,800 victim services agencies across the nation, including on tribal lands, to help victims deal with the immediate aftermath of a crime;
- The Rape Prevention and Education Program (RPE, HHS), which supports comprehensive sexual violence prevention in every state for communities and schools;
- The STOP program (VAWA, DOJ), which improves the criminal justice and wider community response by allowing states and communities to develop coordinated community responses to domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking; and
- The National Domestic Violence Hotline (NDVH, HHS), which receives over 600,000 contacts per year; StrongHearts Native Helpline (StrongHearts), which serves the specific cultural and jurisdictional needs of Native victims of domestic and dating violence; and Abused Deaf Women's Advocacy Services (ADWAS), which is the only national service program for Deaf and hearing-challenged survivors of domestic violence.

We ask you to support and prioritize investments in the President's FY 2023 budget to reach the most vulnerable survivors, including increasing funding for culturally specific organizations; funding for LGBTQ and Deaf survivors; direct financial assistance to meet survivors' emergency needs, and support for families affected by domestic violence at the intersection of substance-use coercion, housing instability, and child welfare involvement.

This includes investments in VAWA and related discretionary programs that complement the state formula grants by propelling innovation and providing targeted responses to domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking. All the programs detailed in the attached chart work together to provide a comprehensive response to victims of gender-based violence. These include lifesaving legal services; funding for services in rural and remote areas; transitional housing programs to help victims rebuild their lives after violence and abuse; law enforcement improvements such as sexual assault response teams, initiatives to address the rape kit backlog, and homicide reduction initiatives; services for underserved victims, including individuals with disabilities and elderly victims; funding to ensure compliance with the requirement of serving victims with limited English proficiency; programs aimed at children, youth, and college students; projects addressing courts and visitation; programs to respond to the epidemic of sexual assault and domestic violence on tribal lands; projects addressing violence in the workplace; and prevention programs and public health responses to violence and abuse.

Additionally, we urge Congress to increase the set-aside for housing for survivors of domestic violence and sexual assault in the HUD Continuum of Care (CoC) homelessness assistance program to $75 million. The funds support rapid re-housing projects and supportive service projects providing coordinated entry and other critical activities to assist survivors of domestic violence and sexual violence.

Finally, we urge Congress to provide at least $15 million (in addition to $400 million to address USCIS backlogs) to process victim-related applications within 90 days of receipt and ensure the timely access to employment authorization for victims in the U visa program, as well as in the T visa and VAWA Self-Petition programs. These programs are critical for victims to be able to escape and overcome abuse, as many abusers use immigration status to control their victims. Fortunately, Congress has recognized these risks and created the U visa and VAWA self-petition remedies. The U visa was established in 2000 for victims of certain designated crimes who suffered substantial physical or mental abuse and are certified as helpful to law enforcement or government officials in the investigation or prosecution of criminal activity.

However, due to the delay in the issuance of regulations until 2007, the 10,000 visas available annually were not allocated during FY 2001-FY 2007. We are requesting inclusion of legislative language and sufficient funding to: 1) recapture the unallocated visas from the date of the enactment of the U-visa program until the present day — a minor technical change that would significantly alleviate the backlog of over 170,800<sup>101112</sup> primary applicants awaiting U-visas; 2) increase staffing of the Vermont Service Center Humanitarian Unit and the Nebraska Service Center U Visa Unit by at least 100 additional agents; and 3) provide adequate resources to hire and train adjudicators to process victims' applications within 90 days of receipt and to issue employment authorization within 180 days. These resources are critical and can mean the difference between leaving and recovering from abuse and returning to abusive and exploitative relationships.

Each of these programs must receive increased funding to ensure that our communities can build on our years of progress and meet the needs of ALL victims.

We ask Congress to:

- fully fund VAWA, FVPSA, and related programs;
- provide steady funding for VOCA, and maintain a tribal funding stream, without transferring funds from VOCA to fund other programs;
- maintain a housing set-aside for survivors in the HUD homelessness program; and

- increase funding to address the backlog in victims' applications at USCIS' Vermont and Nebraska Service Centers.

We call on you to support increased funding for these vital programs. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact Monica McLaughlin, National Network to End Domestic Violence, at mmclaughlin@nndv.org or Terri Poore, National Alliance to End Sexual Violence, at terri@endsexualviolence.org.

Thank you for your continued leadership in keeping victims safe and healthy. We know our successes could not be achieved without your support, and we are grateful for all that you do.

Sincerely,

(list in formation)
